

A Special Update on Covid-19 from Maxwell GeoSystems' CEO

Date: 9th October 2020

Over the course of this year we have all been watching the development of the COVID-19 coronavirus pandemic with feelings of concern and great uncertainty.

The world has seen a crisis of unprecedented nature and effects. Our day to day lives have been overwhelmed by this unimaginable chain of events

As we continue to navigate through uncharted territory, it is important as always that we continue to remain calm, show solidarity and stand by each other in this difficult time. Our hearts go out to anyone in our global community who may be affected by the coronavirus.

Notwithstanding, we still have a very important job to do in ensuring the vital level of business continuity that supports our clients, who are relying on us, are maintained. We have introduced various support measures, along with an added set of resources that we hope will help us all adapt to these times.

Our MissionOS system software continues to demonstrate its reliability, robustness and resilience as a market-leading cloud-based platform for construction data management providing essential continuity of service to our clients despite these extraordinary circumstances.

To protect you and your families, our business, and the communities we live and work in, we have maintained our business operations throughout with as many colleagues as possible working from home, complying with the respective local government guidelines & restrictions brought into place.

We thank everyone in the company for their determination, adaptability and resilience during this most difficult of times. By doing so, we will live up to our social responsibility to prevent the virus spreading further.

Inevitably, the outcome and effect of this pandemic presents us with new challenges. We will embrace these new changes as they arise, in sync with global society. Together we will be able to meet these challenges, with the help of all of you, as well as that of our customers, partners and service providers.

Together we will get through this.

Stay safe.
